Applicant's election without traverse of Group I (claims 1-9) and the species alpha olefin copolymers as compatibilizers in the reply filed on 9-10-07 is acknowledged.

Applicant's election with traverse of propylene as the species of polyolefin in the reply filed on 9-10-07 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the search with propylene will overlap with other polyolefins. This is not found persuasive because the search for propylene is classified in class 525 subclass 240 and the only other olefin specific for this subclass is ethylene.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.
The restriction between paraffinic and naphthenic oils is hereby withdrawn.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Jeong et al. (US 2002/0151653).

The reference discloses in Table 1 on page 4 EPDM/polypropylene/oil containing compositions (TPE's 1,2 and 3) which are combined in Table 2 with crosslinker and ethylene alpha olefin copolymers ("EPM" and "EOR") such as is encompassed by applicants component "c".

When the reference discloses all the limitations of a claim except a property or function, and the Examiner cannot determine whether or not the reference inherently possesses properties which anticipate or render obvious the claimed invention, basis exists for shifting the burden of proof to applicant. Note In re Fitzgerald et al. 619 F. 2d 67, 70, 205 USPQ 594, 596, (CCPA 1980). See MPEP § 2112-2112.02.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Imai et al. (US 2003/0059637).

The reference discloses examples such as Example 13 of Table 2 on page 22 in which "EPT", a combination of oil and EPDM (see paragraph 300) , "PP-1" as in applicants "c" (see paragraph 301) and various polyolefins are treated with crosslinker.

When the reference discloses all the limitations of a claim except a property or function, and the Examiner cannot determine whether or not the reference inherently possesses properties which anticipate or render obvious the claimed invention, basis exists for shifting the burden of proof to applicant. Note In re Fitzgerald et al. 619 F. 2d 67, 70, 205 USPQ 594, 596, (CCPA 1980). See MPEP § 2112-2112.02.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Kobayashi et al. (US 4895903).

Patentees disclose a dynamically cured blend having applicants polyolefin components in Examples 9 and 10 starting in column 11 (note also column 9, line 39 et seq where the components are defined).

When the reference discloses all the limitations of a claim except a property or function, and the Examiner cannot determine whether or not the reference inherently possesses properties which anticipate or render obvious the claimed invention, basis exists for shifting the burden of proof to applicant. Note In re Fitzgerald et al., 619 F. 2d 67, 70, 205 USPQ 594, 596, (CCPA 1980). See MPEP § 2112-2112.02.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Abdou-Sabet (US 6100334).

Patentees in Table III disclose Example F42 containing EPDM, EPR, PP and oil as does Example 6 of Table V as in applicants elected embodiment and in Example G49 of Table IV disclose a similar composition but with Kraton G styrenic block copolymer in place of the EPR.

When the reference discloses all the limitations of a claim except a property or function, and the Examiner cannot determine whether or not the reference inherently possesses properties which anticipate or render obvious the claimed invention, basis exists for shifting the burden of proof to applicant. Note In re Fitzgerald et al., 619 F. 2d 67, 70, 205 USPQ 594, 596, (CCPA 1980). See MPEP § 2112-2112.02.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Itoh (US 6,610,786).

Example 17 of the patent discloses a dynamically vulcanized blend or PP, EPDM, EP rubber and oil.

When the reference discloses all the limitations of a claim except a property or function, and the Examiner cannot determine whether or not the reference inherently possesses properties which anticipate or render obvious the claimed invention, basis exists for shifting the burden of proof to applicant. Note In re Fitzgerald et al., 619 F. 2d 67, 70, 205 USPQ 594, 596, (CCPA 1980). See MPEP § 2112-2112.02.
